Benefit Theatre Show Well Patronized

Three Funds Share Equally; All Seats Sold Out on First Show.

The benefit shows on Friday last to aid the Lions Chalmers' Fund, Cigarette Fund, and Kinsmen's Milk For Britain Fund, were an unqualified success.

The matinee on Friday afternoon saw an overflow of children, a number being unable to gain admittance. These youngsters were cared for the following afternoon when arrangements were made with Mr. Cole to give them a free matinee.

The 7:30 p.m. show for adults saw the theatre filled to capacity, with many unable to gain admittance. These, however, and many more attended the second show at 9:30 p.m.

Cheques will soon be sent to the three funds and the sponsors, the Lions and Coleman schools, thank Mr. Cole for his co-operation.

Cigarette Fund Notes

Dear Sirs: Received pipe tobacco today. It is the first since July and it sure came in handy. I expect to go on leave at the end of the week so at least I will have a decent smoke. Well say hello to everybody and thanks to all the people who make these gifts possible. Frank Kigannon

Dear Friends: I receive The Journal quite regularly and have failed to say my name in the cigarette acknowledgements. The last letter sent you was posted Aug. 29 so you might have received before this, I am grateful for your kindness in sending the cigarettes so regularly and I thank you for your tireless efforts in keeping we boys from Coleman supplied with fags. Let's hope the whole thing is over shortly and we can all be together again—George Evans.

Dear Friends: Trusting this letter finds you in good health and happy. I want to thank you all very kindly for the cigarettes which I received this week. I assure you they are more than appreciated, especially over here where we are usually all on the move and our daily issue of seven cigarettes does not always keep up with us—of course our mail is the same. Every time a few letters and parcels do arrive the boys all group around with an expectant look in their eyes and when none is called out then they turn away very disappointed. Over here a letter is a gift from home and a parcel is a gold mine.

Incidentally I am writing this letter at an unusual time—06:15 hours in the morning. I've been duty operator on the exchange all night. Right now is the hardest time to remain awake, being slack time for calls. Anyway says I, I'll take advantage of the time to catch up on a few letters.

It's a beautiful morning considering that it rained during the night. The church bells have been ringing since 5 o'clock and when they ring they chime slow or less of a hymn and it certainly is nice to listen to.

I've seen quite a number of ancient ruins, dating back to early Greek and Roman days. The ancient history lovers back home would excel in travelling around over here. I wouldn't mind touring around myself but these "Heinies" are still cluttering up the place so I suppose I will have to wait.

Well I'll have to get busy on the

Many Pass citizens listened with much pleasure to Coleman's Miss Freda Antrobus and Toronto's Jane Harkness on Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock over radio station CPAC in the first of a series of broadcasts sponsored by York Knitting Mills.

The girls were the first to appear on a 26 weeks series of broadcasts to uncover singing talent among young Canadian girls under 25 years. Regional committees have been set up from coast to coast to uncover talent, give auditions and recommend appearances on these Sunday broadcasts.

Freda sang first and chose for her songs Michela's song from opera "Carmen", and the Waltz Song from opera "Tom Jones". Reception was good and her voice was clear and distinct, her rendition of both songs being very good.

Miss Harkness, 18, chose for her first number a song from an opera which she sang in French. Her second song was the lovely "Last Rose of Summer." Her voice was a shade deeper than Freda's and she sang both her numbers beautifully.

Both girls are students at the Toronto Conservatory of Music. The series is in the form of a competition to aid young girls with their musical education. At the end of the series the winner will be awarded and awarded a $1,000 musical scholarship, second prize is a $500 scholarship and third a $200 scholarship.

Council to Endeavor to Have T.B. Clinic Visit Pass; Ask That Game Warden Be Stationed in District

Water Still Contaminated; Cutting Down Trees in Park Serious Offense; Honor Roll to be Prepared

Regular meeting of the council was held on Monday evening. Present: Mayor Antrobus, Councillors Aboutusky, Cox, Dutil, Ford, Jenkins and Ramsay.

By-law 184 received third reading and provides an amount of $100 to take care of all grants given by the council to various organizations and institutions seeking aid during the year.

Jennie and Josie Antrobus were allowed $30 each during their first month at their new homes at Barons. This amount was to take care of clothing and school books. Council will now pay $7 monthly for each of the girls unless something extraordinary arises.

Once again certain clauses in the Old Age pension act started a spirited debate. This time it was the result of a letter from the pension board explaining why an elderly local lady was only allowed $15 pension plus the $5 supplementary cheque. It seems this lady a number of years ago signed over her property to her son. Now that she is more or less in straitened circumstances the Board states it is the duty of the son to help support the mother. Another Board letter dealt with the case of a lady on Second street who steadfastly refuses to reveal what little amount she has in the post office to Pension officers. Until she does the Board states it will be unable to further deal with her case.

As a result of the debate it was unanimously agreed that Mayor Antrobus draft a resolution for the next meeting asking that the entire Old Age Pension act be revised, a copy being sent to E. G. Hansell, M.P. The resolution will also be brought to the attention of the other municipalities at their next annual meeting.

A report on the local drinking water received from Edmonton reveals that the water is still contaminated.

A supply of winter clothing to Mrs. N. Deputat, relief recipient, was granted.

The medical health officer's report revealed that there was one case of scarlet fever in July and several cases of Chicken pox in September. General conditions were satisfactory.

Julian Lardinois, town employee, received a bad eye injury when cement dust got into it when working for the town recently. The council received a letter from the Safety supervisor demanding that the town secure suitable goggles for this work in future. Two pairs are to be ordered. Mr. Lardinois now on compensation and the injury has proved so serious that he was sent to Edmonton where he is a hospital patient.

A letter of thanks was received from the Women's Auxiliary, Canadian Legion, for the donation received from the town.

A letter was received from somewhere in South Africa asking council for aid. The contents gave the impression that it had been written from some missionary station. The letter was filed but should anyone of the four church orders here desire to see the letter, council will be pleased to let them read it.

The secretary reported that so far not one cent has been derived from Tony Lycka since he started work to help reduce his indebtedness to the town.

Mayor Antrobus reported that E. O. Duke, M.L.A., has found that it was the Department of Municipalities which would receive complaints regarding the coal dust nuisance.

The local branch of the Canadian Legion is giving serious thought to purchasing a lot next to its present building, building a rock wall similar to the one at the Town hall, planting a lawn and in the centre of the lot erecting a cairn in honor of Coleman's enlisted men and women. Council is willing to co-operate and ask the Legion to send a committee to a future council meeting where the matter will be given a more detailed discussion.

An honor roll to be located in town hall will be prepared, Mayor Antrobus being in charge of arrangements.

Mayor Antrobus, an advocate for a game warden in the Pass, brought the question to the councillors. During the discussion it was generally agreed that there certainly was need for a game warden in this district, which was said to be the second largest in Alberta. A suitably worded resolution will be sent to E.O. Duke, M.L.A. asking that he use his influence in having a game warden stationed in this district. Mayor Antrobus also brought forward the idea of having the provincial T.B. clinic brought to the Pass. It had travelled throughout southern Alberta with the exception of the Pass towns. Council was of the opinion that it was a very good idea and that the clinic would be well received by Pass citizens. Efforts will now be made to have the clinic come to this district.

Works and Property Chairman W. Dutil reported that the culverts in West Coleman had been cleaned out and repaired and were now O.K. He also reported on the wonderful job being done by the large culvert at West Coleman which will help alleviate flood damage.

Mayor Antrobus reported that he had found a number of trees cut down in Flumerfelt Park. Most of the trees had been dead but there has been one 'good tree' felled. No one was aware of the person responsible and it was decided to advertise a warning in The Journal against cutting down timber without a permit and it was also ordered that warning cards be placed in the Park proper to warn persons from cutting timber.

Some citizens steadfastly refuse to play the game with the ashman. There is a town by-law which states ash-cans should be no more than three feet from the back fence gate. Some people however insist on having the ash-can at their back door and expect the ashman to carry it some distance to his truck. Others fill cans full of rock and debris. Council authorized a committee to have a talk with the new ashman to find out what illegal conditions were being confronted by him.

Town solicitor Bannan will be asked to draft a contract to be signed by both council and ashman.

Papers regarding Mr. Dave Gillespie's lot on Fifth street have been received and are now being studied by Solicitor Bannan.

Works and Property Chairman Dutil reported on his visit to the Panek and Soroff properties in West Coleman. He stated he had found damage at both places which, in his opinion, could have been caused by ground sinking. He was pleased to report that the company had been good enough to make arrangements with the Paneks. He recommended a letter be written the company regarding inspecting the Soroff property.

It was decided to leave the hiring of caretaker for the open air rink in the hands of the Sports Association.

Mrs. Horatio was present and sought council's permission to move into the Androsak residence on Second street. She also wanted to know what compensation would be made to her husband and self for clothing and feeding the two Androsak girls for several months following the death of their father. Council advised her that its decision would be sent her by mail. After some discussion it was decided to rent them the house at $10 per month and that nothing be paid them for clothing and feeding the Androsak girls, since the council was not made aware of arrangements at the start. A contract will be drawn up by council and will have to be signed by Mr. Horatio before he starts renting the house.

ERNEST H. ELSDON

Vancouver, Nov. 13.—Ernest H. Elsdon, driller in a local shipyard, came off the night shift recently to find his room burglarized and all his savings, $2,750 stolen. "If I'd had the sense to put that cash in a bank, I wouldn't have lost the $2,750 to a burglar," he said.

"I'd been saving that money to buy a house and all I've got left after months of work is a battered strong box. I made the mistake, you see, of keeping that money by me instead of putting it in the bank every pay day. Now I've got to start at the beginning again, but I'm going to stay at my job as a driller until I've got the money to buy that house. No more foolish risks for me. From now on I'm letting the bank keep my cash safe. It's tough luck, when you're getting up in years, to lose the very thing you've been counting on, but what I want to do is to let other people profit by my loss. Don't take any chances—let the bank take care of your money and then you'll have it safe and sure for the things you want to buy when the war's over."

FIRST BIBLE TO BE PRINTED IN CANADA BY UNITED CHURCH

On Wednesday, Oct. 27, the first pages of "The Sacred Word" came off Canadian presses for the first time in history.

It may surprise some to know that Bibles are being printed for the first time in Canada. The reason is bound up with Canadian and British history and tradition. Now, however, the exigencies of the war situation and the demand for Bibles have altered the situation, making it almost imperative that the first print Bibles in Canada be granted.

Girl Guide Doll Now on Display

Have you seen our doll in the Coleman Hardware window? We are very proud of her, and think she has quite a wardrobe! All the Guides have tickets for the raffle, and will be glad to have your names. As this money is to be used to send material to the Nursery just out of London we are hoping to make enough to send a good gift.

Guide work seems to be doing very well at Company Parades this year. Several girls are working on the Morse test and still others are struggling with the Signals badge. Of course the regular classes are being taken, so we have a busy time.

We have been pleased to have three new guides recently, and hope they will be ready for enrolment at an early date.

Cost of Living Bonus in Industry Increased

Following the increase (as of October 1, 1943) of 1.4 points in the adjusted cost of living index announced by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, the National War Labour Board issued a General order today that the cost of living bonuses be increased accordingly commencing with the first payroll period beginning on or after November 15, 1943.

In the case of adult male employees, and of other employees receiving weekly rates of $25.00 or more per week, the amount of the weekly increase will be 35 cents; for male employees less than 21 years of age and female employees, whose weekly wage rates are less than $25.00 per week, the increase will be 1.4 per cent of their weekly wage rates.

This increase is compulsory for all employers who are subject to the Wartime Wages Control Order, P.C. 5963, and the 35 cents or 1.4 per cent upward adjustment must be added to all cost of living bonuses presently being paid to employees who are not above the rank of Foreman.

The maximum weekly bonus will now be $45.00, of 18.4 per cent of the weekly wage rates, as the case may be.

REV. J. E. KIRK WRITES THE JOURNAL

A most interesting letter was received this week from Rev. J. E. Kirk along with his renewal subscription.

Mr. and Mrs. Kirk and family have now settled down in their new home and the former is very proud of his new church which he describes as "one of the most tastefully and most congenially planned churches that one would find outside the modern city churches."

There is an air cadet corps in Lamont, organized since commencement of the new school term and Stanley Kirk is one of the leaders. He is now working for his Flight-Sergeant's rank. The cadets are planning a four team hockey league and Mr. Kirk has been signed as one of the coaches. Since he does not have Stuart Murdoch as a bodyguard this year he has some misgivings on the outcome and remarks "if you hear of someone getting his neck out of joint, don't be surprised."

Mr. and Mrs. Kirk send their best regards to all their Coleman friends.

Bill McDonald Gets Pit Boss' Job At Drumheller

Bill McDonald, fire boss at International for some time, left on Sunday morning for Drumheller where he has secured a position as pit boss at one of the mines.

He and his family arrived in Coleman from Drumheller in July, 1942, and their friendly dispositions soon won them a host of friends. Bill was an enthusiastic member of the Lions club and seldom missed a meeting. He was also a canvasser in the recently concluded Victory Loan.

Mrs. McDonald and family are residing here at present and will join Mr. McDonald in the near future.

WORLD HAPPENINGS
BRIEFLY TOLD

Flight Lieutenant George "Buzz" Beurling of Verdun, Que., was grounded for low flying over the aerodrome in his trainer plane, according to The London Chronicle.

More than 5,000 pounds of Manitoba honey were sent recently to Great Britain, officials of the Canadian Red Cross said at Winnipeg. The honey will be used for civilian consumption.

More than 25 per cent. of the Swedish merchant fleet as it was in 1939, has been lost through reasons directly due to the war, said Nils L. Jaenson, Swedish consul in Erie.

"Desert Victory," the official film of the advance of the 8th Army to Tripoli, was seen by 70,000 persons in Moscow in the first two days it was shown there, it is reported to London.

Rationing has become so intricate in Germany that a housewife buying for a family of four may have to carry from 50 to 100 cards.

Malta's briar pipe industry has continued, almost without interruption, all through the war. One factory carried on in the heaviest air raids without losing a day's work.

Eskimos, some families making as much as $35,000 a year by trapping, are being brought under Canada's income tax; mounted police oversee the making out of returns.

Radio-telephone may find a new use in Britain. Apparatus enabling engine crews and conductors to converse have been tested successfully.

A memorial gate will shortly be unveiled in London to Netherlands killed while trying to escape to Britain or killed in the war after their escape.

DREAMS RISE FROM YOUR SECRET SELF

Another "You" Wakes In Sleep. Do you know you have two selves? One is the self everyone knows. The other not even YOU want to know? It thinks thoughts you're ashamed to recognize. It does things you'd never do.

And you can't get rid of it! It wakes when you sleep. It makes you dream of the wildest, most puzzling things. Riding to work, your train whizzes past your station and the next one and the next one! You're filled with panic!

This is because your secret self, your "subconscious," is seething with problems, emotions you ignore. In dreams it tries to tell you about them, using its own strange, symbolic language.

In the dream of the train it says: "Don't let your impulses run away with you!" If you've been attracted to someone else's beau, that is an obvious warning!

Our 32-page booklet explains many such common dreams and dream symbols - according to psycho-analysis, including flying, falling off cliffs.

Send 15c in coins for your copy of "The Meaning of Dreams" to Home Service Dept., Winnipeg Newspaper Union, 175 McDermot Ave. E., Winnipeg, Man. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, and name of booklet.

Refugees From Rome Say Nazis

Have Mined The City. Premier Marshal Pietro Badoglio Bari radio said in a domestic broadcast that refugees from Rome report the Nazis have mined all important buildings there and had stated that "they want to leave only the memory of Rome."

"German sappers have mined all large public and private buildings," said the broadcast, recorded by United States government monitors. "Tons of explosives have been placed under all ministries. Bridges, hotels and the aqueduct that supplies water to the city also have been mined."

The volume of underground water in the earth has been estimated at nearly one-third the amount of the sea.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

NOVEMBER 21

HONESTY IN ALL THINGS

Golden text: Thou shalt not steal. Exodus 20:15. Lesson: Exodus 20:15; Leviticus 19:11, 13; Luke 19:1-10, 45, 46. Devotional Reading: Matthew 6:24-33.

Explanations and Comments

The Eighth Commandment: The Law of Honesty, Exodus 20:15. Thou shalt not steal.

A Law against Stealing and Deceiving, Leviticus 19:11, 13. "Thou shalt not oppress thy neighbor, nor rob him—by paying him less than a fair wage, if he is in thy employ, by giving him scant measure, if he is thy customer, by requiring long hours of service if he is a maid in thy house. The wages of a hired servant shall not abide with thee all night until the morning, that is, you shall pay for services when payment is due. Is it indifference or carelessness, or is it the inability to put oneself in another's place, that makes a householder fail to realize how important to a worker is the receipt of wages on the day they are due?"

A Business Man Adjusts His Business to the Teaching of Jesus regarding Honesty, Luke 19:1-10. It was when Jesus was on his journey to Jerusalem that this incident took place at Jericho. Very familiar is the story of Zacchaeus, the tax collector, whom Jesus by a visit at his home changed from the grasping, dishonest dealer into an honest man, eager to make reparation for his dishonesty in the past and to keep from being a grafter in the future.

Dishonesty in the Temple, Luke 19:45, 46. In the temple precincts animals were sold for sacrifices and money was changed for offerings. This temple market arose for the sake of Jewish pilgrims from afar who needed to secure for sacrifices beasts and birds duly certified as "clean," and to change their foreign money into Jewish coin. But the temple market had become "a den of robbers," Jesus declared. It was a monopoly and was owned, or leased, by the sons of the High Priest Annas, as we learn from rabbinic literature, and they were noted for their greed and dishonesty.

British Justice

Made Sure That Young Boy Got His Civil Rights

A boy, 11 years old, in Hereford, England, got a raw deal in a lower court. In fact got seven years in a reformatory, also the birch, and without the process of trial and hearing. The King's Bench reviewed the case and the presiding magistrates who inflicted the penalty, two of whom were women were excoriated by the Justices. It is a pretty good old England when time off can be taken in the midst of the worst war in history to guard the civil rights of an 11-year-old lad.—St. Catharines Standard.

Pennant For Railway Employees

Over the top for the Fifth Victory Loan with 91 per cent. contributing employees of the Canadian Pacific Railway's Weston Shops, at Winnipeg, Manitoba, formally received the loan pennant from W. S. Helli, general superintendent Manitoba District and chairman of the loan committee. Weston has subscribed $133,000, representing 1,708 employees. This is more than $50,000 above their subscriptions to the fourth loan. L. B. George, works manager received the pennant from W. Hall and handed it over to W. Holland, carman, chairman of the Federated Trades, representing the staff.

Since the outbreak of this mechanized war no fewer than 176 apprentices from Weston Shops, have enlisted in one of the three services, thereby transferring their activities from the railway to the armed forces. Mr. George made this statement, in accepting the victory loan pennant to indicate that Canada benefits in no small degree from the fact that such a pool of mechanically trained men was available when their services were needed.

In 1939 the apprentice staff at Weston totalled only 106 boys. In the increased number of 176 is evident the extent of the contribution the shops has made to the technical branches of the navy, the army and the air force. In most cases the lads have enlisted to do the specific kind of work for which they were trained at Weston. They are scattered now to practically every theatre of war.

The majority have chosen the navy, and today, Mr. George said, the engineering staffs of Canada's ships list no fewer than 94 officers and ratings who only recently answered to the whistle at Weston.

The Fifth Victory Loan pennant for a total of 91 per cent. of the staff subscribing is hoisted to the shops' flagpole at Weston Shops, Winnipeg.

More than 2,000 names are now on the "war criminals" books in London, which identifies quislings and occupational offenders.

Wanted Right Time

And Post Department Felt Quite Sure They Got It

A lieutenant who had just taken charge of the meteorology department at one of the United States Army Air Force navigation schools noticed that his secretary's telephone rang every morning at approximately a quarter to twelve. She would glance at the wall clock, announce the time, and hang up. Finally he asked who was doing the calling. "I don't know," she said. "I never thought to ask. They just call up and ask the time, and I tell them." Being a tidy soul, the lieutenant instructed her to find out who was calling, and why. The next day, after interrogating the caller, the secretary told him that it was the post fire department. "They want the right time so they can sound the noon siren," she said. "Well, how do you know that our clock has the right time?" he asked. "I don't," she said. "Not now. I've been checking it by the noon siren."

SCOTS WERE ASTONISHED

Skirl of pipes and rumble of drums through the streets of Barce, Scotland, brought crowds from their homes to see the band march past, but they were astonished to find, instead of a Scottish regiment, the recently formed band of the Senoussi Arabs.

The chippies, or four-toed horse, was the earliest known stage in the ancestry of the horse.

The letters "e" and "a" are the most used in the English alphabet.

There are no railroads and few roads in Borneo.

Would Not Talk

Even The Queen Could Not Get Information From Stoker

The Halifax Herald says an English magazine, in a story referring to a recent visit of the King and Queen to Glasgow, relates an incident at a Merchant Navy hotel in that city.

Here the Queen asked Hugh McCutcheon, a stoker, how long it would be before he went to sea again. Saluting, the man replied: "I cannot tell ye that, Your Majesty. It would be careless talk."

There followed a brief chat and a royal handshake. What a picture of an alert and loyal seaman, and his graciously courteous Sovereign. A smiling apology, and a handshake in recognition of a true man's worth.

None Will Escape

Germans Will Likely Wreck Cities In All Occupied Countries

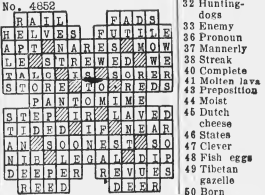

Thinking of Rome, the mind naturally turns to other cities in enemy hands. How will Paris fare when the Germans leave? She escaped the worst when they entered, but when they vacate their temper will be very different. There is Marseilles, too, and many other French towns; Brussels, Antwerp, Rotterdam and Amsterdam also. When they must withdraw from Denmark, will the Germans spare Copenhagen? The trouble is that we are dealing with people in whom the spirit of the old Vandals, Goths and Huns is still alive. Rome has known these in the past.—Saint John Telegraph-Journal.

CHAPTER XI.

FROM a dark side-street where they left the horses, Jonathan and Tucker approached the town house of Lord Farquhar on foot. Jonathan's plan was to gain entrance in some manner, find Anne and get her out of the place. The task promised to be difficult, since Farquhar would be aware that Jonathan would attempt something of the sort. Every door and window would be secured and guarded by his lordship's servants, men who, Jonathan already knew, were willing to kill at a word from the master.

Jonathan peered through a break in the shrubbery surrounding the Elizabethan structure. A corner of the building was a few yards away, so situated that Jonathan could see both the front and one side of the house. The verandah covering the entrance was deep with shadow, but along the side wall were a number of jutting windows, panes yellow with the candle-glow of lighted rooms. The windows were too high for Jonathan to peer within, but he was confident that Anne Jamieson and Lord Farquhar were in one of those rooms.

"We'll have to find a window we know to be unwatched," he muttered in Tucker's ear, and moved from the trellis to a rosebush closer to the rear of the house. From this new position he could view the windows of that section of the house in complete darkness. Jonathan found a pebble-sized clod of dirt and tossed it toward the most likely looking window.

The missile splattered against the pane. For a moment the experiment brought no result. Then Tucker's fingers touched Jonathan's knee in warning. He, too, had glimpsed the blacker shadow that was moving over the darkened window.

There was no window, as there was no door, that Lord Farquhar had left unguarded. Confronted with this checkmate, Jonathan was silent and still even when the blurred outlines of the figure at the window had faded away.

Tucker shuffled closer. "There is only one way to get in, sir. There is a low-roofed porch at the back of the house. I could mount your shoulders and crawl up on that porch top and go down one more chimney. The night is warm and the fireplaces will be unlighted. Once inside the house I can use the butler's knife and pistol on the guard at a side door and admit you."

"If you think the thing can be done," Jonathan eyed the high-gabled roof, "go ahead."

ON HANDS and knees they crept over the ground to the side of the house, kept close to the wall until they reached the edge of the rear porch. Crowding against the building so he could not be seen from any door or window, Jonathan gave Tucker a leg up and watched the former chimney sweep vanish soundly into the gloom above the porch.

It wasn't long before the thorny branches stirred and Tucker, panting a little, his face and garments streaked dark as the midnight night, was with Jonathan. "I did it, sir," the soot-grimed countenance wrinkled triumphantly. "I had to hide in the fireplace for a while, but I finally got a door opened."

Tucker led the way to the unlocked door. In the narrow corridor within Tucker stepped to a small alcove where he had dragged Farquhar's slugged servant. Jonathan nodded approval; Tucker had taken the time to bind and gag the man securely.

The task of the chimney sweep was ended. Jonathan took the lead back in the hall, moving from passage to passage, working his way toward the lighted section of the house. The halls were deserted, the servants being at door and window. Caution had to be exerted only to avoid furniture and to keep their footfalls noiseless.

The intruders came at last to a door with a line of light showing along the floor. Jonathan drew his pistol, motioned for Tucker to duplicate the action, pushed the door back on its silent hinges and strode swiftly into the room.

The room was bright with candle-light reflecting from prism glassware. At a small table were seated two people, the black-garbed Lord Farquhar and Anne Jamieson. There was food, wine and fruit on the table and on the dishes before his lordship, but the plate and goblet of the girl were empty. Listlessly, the girl was staring at the hands crossed patiently in her lap.

Farquhar sighted the moving figures in the doorway over the rim of his lifted glass. The nobleman made a convulsive movement and choked over the wine in his throat. Anne's head came up at the spattering sound.

"Jonathan!" she cried.

LORD FARQUHAR crashed the goblet down among the dishes. "Hale!" he exclaimed, his disbelief as great as Anne's. To regain his composure he dabbed with a bit of linen at the wine on his chin and lips. Anne flew across the room, but Jonathan, mindful of the fact that Farquhar probably had a pistol handy, stepped aside to prevent her coming between him and the seated man.

"Get your cloak, Anne," Jonathan said. "We are leaving."

"But, Jonathan..."

Farquhar's lip curled. "If you leave this house, Mistress Jamieson, I am released from my promise to spare Hale. I'll have the swine hanged before the pair of you have time to get out of the city."

"So be it," said Jonathan. "Why should I do less for Mistress Anne than she is willing to do for me? Hang me and welcome, Farquhar, but this girl shall never be yours."

He broke off. Farquhar had whirled and was reaching for a dangling bell-cord Jonathan sprang also, his sword whipping out like a silver flame. As Farquhar's fingers closed about the tassels, the blade swung down through the cord a foot above Farquhar's head.

FARQUHAR dropped the severed rope and was away again in the direction of the divan. Keeping ahead of Jonathan he caught up a scabbard, brandished the rapier and turned at bay in a corner of the room.

"Tucker," said Jonathan, "tie up his lordship as you did the man at the door."

The chimney sweep advanced, pistol leveled. Farquhar waved the rapier menacingly. "If you touch me, you black gnome, I'll slit your windpipe!"

"Put up your blade, Farquhar," said Jonathan, "or I'll shoot you down where you stand."

"Shoot and be damned!" snarled the cornered man. "You do not dare use those guns. My servants may not know you are here, but the sound of the first shot will bring them running! Ah!" He cocked his head and grinned. "I hear them now. You must not have cut that bell-rope in time, Hale!"

Jonathan, too, had heard the foot steps in the hall. He spun toward the door, but before he could reach it, the first man was in the room.

"My lord—" the servant began, then stopped at sight of the naked steel and ready pistol. Jonathan kicked the door shut. "Take care of this fellow, Tucker," he said briefly, and the sweep placed himself between the trapped servant and the room's only exit.

It was too late now for Jonathan to spirit Anne out of the house through the door unlocked by Tucker. The quiet house was full of sound, sound that could still be heard through the closed door. Jonathan handed his pistol to the chimney sweep. "You have your blade in your hand, my lord. Will you fight me?"

"Why should I?" Farquhar had detected also the evidences of activity about the house. "I have only to wait until my men will be here to overpower you. Isn't that right, Davis?"

Davis, the servant, blinked. "I do not understand, my lord. I only came to tell you that at the front door, where I was on watch, is a gentleman who gave his name as Sir Maurice Blaine. He seems to think that Master Hale, whom you were expecting, is with you. The Earl of Chelsea is there too—and at least a dozen other gentlemen."

JONATHAN turned to the girl. "Anne, go with Tucker. I shall remain here a bit longer so neither Farquhar nor his servant can have you stopped before you leave the house. You must get away before Sir Maurice is admitted."

"But, you—" Anne's gray eyes searched his face. "No, I shall not leave you."

"Davis!" Farquhar shouted. "Admit Blaine and the others." With a swift movement he tried to circle Jonathan and drive Tucker away from the door with a slash of his sword. But Jonathan, acting just as quickly, planted himself before the rushing man and his own weapon halted the swinging blade in midair.

Farquhar retreated, disengaged the blades, then attacked with desperate fury. The sword, blurred into invisibility by very speed, cut a whistling path through the air. Only the movement of his antagonist's arm enabled Jonathan to gauge the position of the sword. Purely by instinct he blocked the blow, the shock sending a tremor up the length of his arm. Before he could thrust in return, Farquhar had stepped back out of range and lowered his point.

His rage dissolved into a thin smile. "I never thought me to encounter such resistance from you, Hale," he remarked. "But this exchange has awakened the thirst I have long had for thy blood. You will permit me to prepare for the contest in proper fashion?"

"I await your pleasure, my lord," Jonathan said, placing his own sword at rest.

Keeps Him Warm

Full Flying Equipment For Rear Gunner Weighs 135 Pounds

A recent article in the London Daily Mail gives the reason for many of the changes in fabrics used for women's clothing these days. The reason is the design with the clothing worn on "Tail-End Taffy," a rear gunner on operations, shows where much of the silk and woolen material goes.

The Air Ministry clothes the rear-gunner in his transparent turret behind his guns, in silk and leather and wool and the women of the nation will do with less or without to see that he is kept warm while scanning the skies for Nazi planes twenty thousand feet above the earth.

Up there, minus forty degrees is pretty cold.

Taffy's flying equipment, which weighs 135 pounds to his own 140 pounds, keeps him warm, all except his face, which cannot be covered.

Three years ago Taffy rose at dawn to jump into trousers or singlet and hurry off to drive a colliery engine at a South Wales pit. Now he arrives back at dawn after "ops" and picks off fifteen garments. It takes him three quarters of an hour to dress.

"You see, we have to take our time or else we sweat, and this freezes on the skin with serious consequences," he explains.

So the crew dress carefully, in a cool place, just an hour before operations. For the same reason, they are driven instead of walking to their aircraft.

His long pants and vest are of silk-lined wool, as soft and creamy as a baby's layette and three times more expensive. Over them he wears a white knitted polo sweater. His clothing also includes a stout leather Irwin suit, electrically heated and fur-lined from neck to ankles. Three pairs of gloves (white silk, gray wool and leather gauntlets), the rubberized Mae West, and a jockey-like yellow silk cap and gloves to be worn if the gunner bales out in water. Every item has some bearing on the shortages of civilian life.

His great, thick sea-socks turn down over his boots, and underneath he wears a thinner pair. And there is a white silk scarf, which Taffy's girl bought in Cardiff and without which he has never flown.

Recalls Gold Rush

New Sending Supplies Up North Over The Old Yukon Trail

The R.C.A.F. pilot exhaled a long breath and vowed: "Believe me, if I ever take a trip like this again I'll sure have my parachute along."

He wasn't in a sky-climbing aircraft, but seated solidly on the plush seat of a passenger coach of the White Pass and Yukon Railway as it crept along the dizzy cliffs of the White Pass behind this Alaskan seaport.

Hundreds of feet below a foaming torrent was like a thread in the V of the valley. As far as the eye could peer upward were cloud-swathed peaks. And the three-foot gauge of the railway seemed to take up every inch of the ledge along which it wound.

Yet up this valley 45 years ago men toiled on foot to reach the fabled gold of the Yukon. The railway construction crew was not far behind, blasting much of the right-of-way out of solid rock. Now the United States army has taken it over, and sturdy little engines puff over the 111-mile line to Whitehorse, night and day with supplies for the Alaska Highway or the Northwest Staging air route.

The White Pass and Yukon is one of the few railways that paid for itself as it was built. As it crept up the Pass in 1898 and '99 it carried freight to whatever point happened to be the end of the line and saved gold-seekers that much weary foot-slopping with backbreaking loads.

From the train today one can see faint traces of the famous trail of '98, looking more like a goat-track (for agile goats only) than a foot-path which men clambered into the Yukon.

Thirty-five thousand men were employed in building the railroad, which cost $100,000 a foot in some sections. The labor turnover was high. In one day in 1899, 1,500 employees quit en masse to join a gold stampede to Atlin, B.C.

The old landmarks are still there. The train still stops at Lake Bennett, where the gold-rushers caused to build boats and rafts to carry them down the lake. It's a very important stop, for the railway carries no diner and the station restaurant at Bennett is the traveller's only opportunity to break his fast on a 10 or 12-hour trip.

A former Toronto girl, Pearl Swartz, runs the restaurant with a crew of U.S. Army cooks, collecting $1 each from the passengers as they pile in to sit at long tables and eat as much as they can tuck away.

IN NO TIME AT ALL

If trans-Atlantic airplane speeds ever reach 720 miles an hour, the flying time between the United States and Great Britain would be about five hours. Allowing for five hours' difference between Eastern Standard and British time, this means that a passenger who left London at noon would still find it noon when he arrived in New York!

Tanks first were used in warfare by the British.

Target Indicator

Allies Are Now Using A Super-Flare To Penetrate Mist

Allied fliers now are using a super-flare—called a "target indicator"—which can be set at night or day from the sub-atmosphere through almost to a cloud.

The new device, particularly valuable in night fog, made possible the record raid on Dueseldorf, the air ministry said, when the mist was so thick that the attack would have been difficult without it.

Pathfinder planes, reaching the target at zero hour, light the area with flares whose colors are changed for each raid to prevent the Germans faking them. Red and green was used over Dueseldorf.

POLISH REFUGEES VISITED COLEMAN

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Malshewsky, Polish refugees, paid a two days visit to Coleman this week, and while here were the house guests of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Chukla. A number of Polish citizens in the Pass were introduced to them.

Mr. Malshewsky is an artist by profession and before leaving Poland had resided in the mountainous regions, where he painted many mountain scenes. Since leaving Poland, he and his wife have resided in several European countries as well as Brazil.

Since coming to Canada he has gained employment with the Canadian National Railways as a commercial artist, and has had his work exhibited in all large Canadian cities. He has just completed paintings on scenes in the Canadian Rockies.

Mrs. Malshewsky is writing a book on their experiences since leaving the homeland. They speak several languages.

NOTES AND COMMENTS

T.B. Clinic Asked to Visit Pass

Every government, no matter where, has good and bad points. One of the good points of the Alberta government was its inauguration of a travelling T.B. clinic which gives citizens free physical check-ups and advice. This clinic recently toured the southern portion of the province and had record crowds use its facilities. Unfortunately, however, it failed to visit the Pass where more than seven thousand provincial taxpayers abide.

It is to the credit of the local council that they noticed this omission and are now taking steps to have Dr. W. W. Cross, provincial minister of health, authorize the clinic to visit the Pass towns. Many citizens will be afforded the opportunity of a physical check-up which would otherwise be denied them due to financial and other circumstances. When the clinic arrives here it is to be hoped Pass citizens will make full use of it.

Revision Asked on Old Age Pension Act

A step, which may have far reaching effects, was taken at the council meeting on Monday evening. A resolution is being drafted asking for a revision of the Old Age Pension Act, a copy to be given E. G. Hansell, M.P., and also be brought before the provincial municipalities at their next annual meeting.

Few will deny that the Act at the present time contains a number of clauses that are much too severe. Exasperation is often voiced against those civil servants that administer the Act, but they are only doing their duty as recorded for them in the Statute books. As the Act stands now the slightest excuse is used in a number of cases to throw the responsibility of supporting someone on someone else's shoulders, usually the son.

We are of the opinion all, upon reaching a certain age, should be eligible for the pension, regardless of whether they may have some money laid aside or are destitute. All have paid taxes throughout life, then why give to some and not to others.

A plan should be devised where a man could contribute to a government pension fund during his working life, and when he reached the pension age, he would get his pension without having to sign over his property or anything else to the government.

Canada is going to be highly industrialized after this war. If the above scheme is not feasible, then let every machine in operation throughout Canada contribute to an Old Age Pension scheme. A machine turning out lead pencils should be assessed a fraction of a cent for a pencil. To those machines manufacturing heavy or expensive articles, let them be placed in a higher assessment. In this manner machines will be working for the common good of man.

Winch Blundered

The most violent opponent to CCF in the Dominion of Canada could never have hoped to injure the CCF party to such an extent as has Harold Winch, CCF leader in the B.C. legislature, in a speech at Calgary last week.

In what now appears an ill-considered statement, he made the threat that the CCF would use the power of the police and military to subdue those opposed to Socialism to compel them to obey the law, once the CCF secured power at Ottawa. The British North America Act was to be "revised."

His statements have created a sensation all across Canada and opposing parties are making the most of the opportunity to play up such radicalism in the CCF party. To have CCF leaders say at Calgary that they are not worried about the incident is the height of nonsense. They are worried and everyone knows it. Aren't Canadian boys now overseas fighting Hitler because his ideas of government are based on the same principle as Winch voiced at Calgary? Compulsion! Canadians who had looked kindly on the CCF party are now giving it a more thorough scrutiny. The provincial by-election at Red Deer should give us an insight as to how seriously Winch has damaged the party's chances in Alberta.

WEDDINGS

MILO-MELUSI

A pretty and most interesting wedding took place at Holy Ghost church on Saturday, Nov. 13, when Rose, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Melusi, of Fernie, became the bride of Nick, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Mike Milo. Rev. L. Sullivan officiated.

The bride, entering the church on the arm of her brother, Joe Melusi, looked charming in a gown of white sheer and a floor-length bridal veil held together by a wreath of orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of roses.

Attending the bride was Miss Omega Audia, of Fernie, a cousin, who was lovely in a floor-length gown of sheer blue and carrying a bouquet of lilies.

Attending the groom was Elvino Gabino, of Coleman.

During the signing of the register Miss Theresa Perri, of Fernie, sang most beautifully "Ave Maria."

Following the ceremony relatives and friends of the couple gathered at the Greenhill hotel where the reception was held and dinner served.

The happy couple left on Sunday for a honeymoon to be spent at Edmonton.

Out of town guests included Mr. and Mrs. John Melusi, Mr. and Mrs. L. Pinotti, Mr. Jack Manning, Mrs. Mildred Harrington and Miss Theresa Perri, all of Fernie.

"What's holding you back brother?"

THE fellows who are in there pitching at the Axis didn't need any formal invitation to race into this scrap... and they're beginning to wonder what happened to you. Those fellows are in the thick of things... smooth-working teams of fighters... each man doing his part.

Besides real he-man action and adventure, you'll get skilled technical training and experience that employers will rate highly after the war.

If you really want to pull your fair share, and if you're fit, there's not a thing in the world to hold you back. You can go aircrew today. You can win your wings in a few short months under the guidance of veteran airmen. What about it, brother?

THE CANADIAN GIRLS IN TRAINING (C.G.I.T.)

"As a Canadian Girl in Training, under the leadership of Jesus, it is my purpose: To cherish health, seek truth, know God, serve others—and thus, with His help, become the girl God would have me be."

Such is the purpose of this club, and any girl wishing to become a member is required to be faithful to her own church or Sunday school, and to endeavor sincerely to live up to "the Purpose." Thus far two groups of girls have been organized, the Intermediate C.G. I. T., including girls fourteen years and under. Miss Reta Ash is leader of this group. The senior C.G.I.T. is constituted of girls of fifteen years and over, with Mrs. Kettys as leader.

In these days of stress our youth need such steady influence as these Christian organizations offer. The program of the group gathering includes a devotional period, then songs, stories, games and hand-work of various sorts. The leaders are willing to give of their time and effort to make the girls' gatherings interesting; they solicit the co-operation of parents. Czechoslovakia

AMONG THE FIRST of the smaller nations to fall under Nazi domination was the Republic of Czechoslovakia. Since that time, the Czechs in exile have continued to fight for their independence, led by their premier, Eduard Benes, and by Jan Masaryk, son of Thomas Masaryk, the founder of the republic. Recently, the twenty-fifth anniversary of the day on which Czechoslovakia became a free and independent state, was observed, and tributes came from all parts of the United Nations to the people of that country, who have so steadfastly upheld the ideals of democracy. Although their country has been occupied, and the people there subjected to all forms of Nazi persecution, the Czechs both at home and in exile, have fought the enemy in every possible way, and have never faltered in their determination to re-establish democratic government in their country when the Germans are driven out.

Long Struggle For Democracy

Czechoslovakia was formerly a part of the Austrian Empire and for many years her people struggled for their independence. This was finally achieved after the First World War, and following the Versailles Peace Conference the Republic of Czechoslovakia was created. Thomas Masaryk, who was the first prime minister, was a great leader, and under his guidance the people of Czechoslovakia established a system of government, which embodied all the democratic ideals for which they had been fighting for many years. Having gained their independence, they desired to live at peace with other nations. At the same time, they realized the vulnerability of their position in Europe, and they were well prepared to resist invasion. They did resist the Nazi attack, but were outnumbered in men and machines by the then mighty German army.

Small Nations Need Security

Czechoslovakia was attacked and overcome at a time when the other democratic nations could not even help to avert such a disaster. Since that time observers have seen in this event a graphic example of the need for collective security. It has been pointed out that no country in the world adhered more strongly to the principles of democracy, or desired more earnestly to avoid war, yet all their idealism was powerless against the attack of a mighty and unprincipled aggressor. It is clear that if, in the future, nations are to be safe from this sort of violation, we must remove the danger that Germany will ever again build up the military might which made it possible for her to destroy the greater part of the continent of Europe in the early months of the war. The people of Czechoslovakia, and the other oppressed countries, will look for some provision for their future security, when plans for the reconstruction of Europe are completed.

SQUASH AN IMPORTANT VEGETABLE

Squash is becoming an important vegetable in our diet. If more was known about the varieties and methods of serving this vegetable, we would probably use it more often. We will consider the varieties first. Squash is classified as winter and summer squash.

Winter—These varieties mature in the fall and will keep well into the winter. They should be fully matured before being stored in a dry room at a temperature between 50-60 degrees F. The winter squash varieties are Acorn or Pepper (small and green), Golden Hubbard, Hubbard (green), Banana squash, Golden Tabic Green. You may not have realized that winter squash is an excellent source of Vitamin A.

Summer—These mature earlier than the winter varieties and will not keep as well. The straight neck, White Bush, Scallion and Zucca are the most common types of summer squash. Their mineral content is similar to the winter varieties, but they are much lower in Vitamin A.

Next we will examine various methods of serving winter squash. You have probably been serving your family only baked or mashed squash and found they tire quickly of these two. There is no need for monotony in your meals when you are serving winter squash. It lends itself to many combinations and may be used in a wide variety of ways. As a dessert, main dish, vegetable or soup, squash can make its appearance in any course, part and cut to desired size for serving.

Glazed Squash—prepare as above and peel. Steam until partially tender, brush each piece with melted butter, season, sprinkle thickly with brown sugar and finish cooking in hot oven.

Squash and Pepper Casserole—prepare as above, cut squash into 1/2 inch slices and bake at 350 degrees F. for 35 minutes in a covered casserole with thin rings of green pepper, a little onion, butter, bread crumbs.

The Consumer Section of the Dominion Dept. of Agriculture has several recipes for squash dishes. The following is recommended by this section:

SQUASH PUFF

3 cups mashed squash
1 cup soft, stale bread crumbs
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon pepper
Combine squash, bread crumbs, salt, pepper and baking powder. Fold in the stiffly beaten egg whites. Turn into a greased casserole, brush over with melted fat and sprinkle with brown sugar. Bake in a moderately hot oven, 375 degrees F., until well puffed and set, about 40 minutes. Six to eight servings.

Post Office Very Efficient In Looking After Military Mail

The post office is today functioning at a high peak of efficiency, especially in regard to military mail. Remember the hazards run by such mail, and the way in which soldiers, sailors and airmen move from station to station, often hundreds and thousands of miles apart, it is remarkable that such few losses should be reported and that, on the whole, military mail should move with such despatch and safety. The post office deserves a special vote of thanks from relatives of active service personnel for the extremely efficient service that it is rendering.—Brookville Recorder and Times.

Our Boys And Girls On Active Service

(By J. G.)

THE folks out Morden, Manitoba, way, will be proud of the exploits of H.M.C.S. "Morden", a corvette which won awards for three of its crew, when rescuing the crew of a torpedoed merchant steamer, the Doyle, Douglas Watson, the commander, got a British Empire Medal for his fine work. The Morden rescued 102 members of the freighter crew, salvaged the 80-ton motor launch and gear from the sinking ship, and piloted it 300 miles through a storm tossed sea. Telegraphist Harry Taylor of Gregg, Manitoba, and Signalman Joe Shacter, Regina, Sask., were in the action.

If you see a Canadian with ribbon decoration on his breast, green, scarlet, royal blue, and green, you will know it is the new Canadian Volunteer Medal, awarded for more than 18 months voluntary active service. Those who have served outside of Canada will wear a little silver maple leaf on the ribbon.

Don't be puzzled if you see anyone in an Army uniform wearing an R.C.A.F. arm band. Those obtaining their discharges to enlist as air crew, wear it for identification purposes, but all army rank badges and chevrons are removed during this period.

Men in the Royal Canadian Navy are really jack of all trades. The British public have expressed their great appreciation for seamen of the R.C.N. who have been sent outside of Canada will wear a little silver maple leaf on the ribbon. They engaged in convoy escort duties, shore leave helping out on farms in Northern England, while their ships were in British ports. Here's the story of 25-year-old Lieut. Donald MacIntyre. Although his ship was a minesweeper, he did everything under the sun except minesweeping. They engaged in convoy escort duties, patrolling and even anti-submarine work among the Arabs. "Slave trading bands were causing all kinds of trouble in the Gulf. They'd go into Persia and entice people with the offer of good paying jobs, and then ship them across the Gulf into the desert, and they'd never hear from again. Our job was to intercept the Arab ships and warn the people. It was a pretty ticklish business."

Canadian sailors standing watch on the North Atlantic this winter will be outfitted with something new to keep them dry and warm, called a Waterproof Protective Suit. The new outfit consists of two pieces of coveralls. The inner one of gabardine, windproof and spray-repellent material, lined with double pile wool, and the outer of butyl (synthetic) rubber, a material being hailed as the successor to oilskin. Everything is zipped and the whole can be shed in seconds in an emergency.

If you are thinking of sending letters or gifts to soldiers now in Canada, but expected to be overseas before the end of December, they should be addressed this way: Regimental Number; Name and Rank; Service or Unit; c/o Post Rest, Canadian Postal Corps Headquarters, Canadian Army Overseas.

Stoker Petty Officer Richard J. War, of New Westminster, B.C., was the "first bridegroom" in the new chapel constructed by sailors at H.M.C.S. "Niobe" manning pool for the Canadian Navy overseas. The bride were out on a fancy wedding for the occasion. He married Nursing Sister Mary Frame, of Lanarkshire, Munster, on the ship's organ, was played by Sub-Lieut. Ted Smith, of Saskatchewan. In the guard of honor was S.P.O. Harry Ball, of Regina, and one of the 16 pulling the bride on was R.P.O. Bill Gibbs, of Winnipeg, and S.P.O. Herbert Popp, of Foxford, Sask.

An Excellent Reservoir

Old Oil Field In California Is A Storage Tank For Natural Gas An old oil field near the city of Los Angeles, California, is being put to valuable wartime use as a natural tank to store natural gas. The Playa Del Rey oil field, covering some 310 acres, contains a layer of porous oil sands about 85 feet thick from which the original oil has been removed. This provides an excellent reservoir for some two billion cubic feet of natural gas, which can be pumped into the subterranean deposits through abandoned oil wells.

The problem of storing gas in the Los Angeles area became acute with the growth of war industry and population, and when the need was thus created, materials to build orthodox tanks became scarce for the same reason.

A Flying World

People In Future Will Want To Travel By Air

The Victoria Colonist says: After this war there is little doubt that civilian air passenger traffic will eclipse anything that the world has ever seen. People who have crossed a continent in eighteen hours, or an ocean in ten hours, will not likely return to week-long trips on any other medium. Coming generations will fly, or be flown, with a little concern over that fact as present generations have shown with regard to boats, trains and automobiles. It will be a flying world.

Winter Clothes For Wild Life Which Are Strictly Practical

Now is the time when inhabitants of the northland are changing into winter clothes. This applies not only to Indian and trapper but to numerous wild creatures some of which undergo a marked transformation. Brown hares and weasels and mottled ptarmigan (Arctic grouse) will quickly acquire coats as white as the snow that will blanket their homeland. Specimens of these animals in the Royal Ontario Museum's study collections show various stages in this change. It is not accomplished by some mysterious transmutation of colour in the old coat as has been supposed by some people. It comes about by the replacement of hair or feathers, a molting of old and growing of new. Winter clothes for wildlife, unlike those of humans, are not "designed" to be revealing. The style for this year, as every year, will be strictly practical.

Wartime Weather

The Effect Of Heavy Cannon Fire Have No Bearing On Weather

Another myth is exploded: that the effect of heavy cannon fire on weather. In spite of the seemingly enormous amounts of energy released by large-scale military operations, scientists assure us that this energy is "puny" compared with those controlling air movements involved in weather.

The belief that firing cannon into clouds will bring rain on a fair day is stated to be utterly groundless. To control the weather, we must be able to move about as we please masses of air weighing at least hundreds of billions of tons, a feat yet far beyond human power.

Monopoly is a difficult thing to control and regulate. It is just as dangerous in the hands of labor as it is in the hands of capital.

LARGE QUANTITIES OF FOOD WILL BE REQUIRED TO FEED STARVING PEOPLE OF EUROPE

OTTAWA.—Over the problem of feeding the people of occupied territories in Europe after their release from the Germans hangs the question of how far Canadians and other people will go in tolerating the continuance of wartime restrictions.

As representatives of the Canadian and other United Nations governments meet at Atlantic City, setting up a United Nations relief and rehabilitation administration, government officials are already thinking how they can sell the idea to the public at home.

Some of those who have been made aware of resentments arising from rationing and restrictions while the issue of the war is in doubt consider these provisions may present a major political factor once the danger period is past.

There appears to be general agreement that large quantities of food and other supplies will be required and that they will have to come out of short stocks. Even wheat is said to be getting down to the point where in the world picture it may be a scarce commodity.

The demand for food for liberated peoples will also come when the manpower shortage is still acute, although not quite as acute as now. The armies will still be overseas but munitions production may be slowing down and release workers to the farms, the packing houses and transportation services.

As a major food producer, Canada is expected to be an important contributor of supplies to U.N.R.R.A., which came into being by the signing of an agreement at Washington and began functioning with a meeting of its council.

From Canada U.N.R.R.A. will want dairy products, canned fruits, vegetables in large quantities, as well as cereals for food purposes, seeds and perhaps livestock for breeding.

CAR SHORTAGE

EDMONTON.—Grain company officials said that a shortage of railway cars in Alberta has caused elevators to be plugged. The shortage was caused by diversion of railway cars to Manitoba and Saskatchewan in an attempt to speed 110,000,000 bushels of wheat to the lakehead before the close of navigation, officials said.

CHURCHILL CREATES MINISTRY OF RECONSTRUCTION WITH TASK OF HELPING BRITAIN AFTER WAR

LONDON.—Prime Minister Churchill has created a ministry of reconstruction with the task of rebuilding Britain after the peace and has shifted Lord Woolton from the food ministry to direct the vast program, it was announced.

In a series of cabinet changes in connection with the new post, which carries with it a seat in the war cabinet, Lord Woolton will be succeeded at the food ministry by Col. J. J. Llewellyn, British minister, resident in Washington. Llewellyn's place will be taken by Ben Smith, a Labor member of parliament and parliamentary secretary to the ministry of aircraft production.

Other changes: Health Minister Ernest Brown replaced by Henry U. Willink, Conservative, and gets nominal cabinet post of chancellor of Duchy of Lancaster; Lieut. A. T. Lennox-Boyd, Conservative, succeeds Smith at the ministry of aircraft production.

Lord Woolton, a self-made business leader whose administration of Britain's wartime food rationing has been one of the government's outstanding successes, will, as reconstruction minister, have supreme control of the rebuilding program and a degree of authority not before given a member of the government.

Creation of this over-all reconstruction post, which had been forestalled for several weeks, is Mr. Churchill's answer to long-continuing criticism that he was neglecting post-war planning.

Selection of the 60-year-old Lord Woolton, who taught Britons to eat dried eggs with a smile and to accept a concoction of carrots and vegetables known as "Lord Woolton pie," was a

FISH LIVER OILS

High Potency Oils From British Columbia To Go To Britain

VANCOUVER.—Gordon Shafer, local fish oil administrator for the prices board, revealed that one of the biggest deals yet made with the British ministry of food for British Columbia's supply of high potency fish liver oils is almost completed and awaits only signature at Ottawa.

Mr. Shafer said that under the agreement, all high potency fish liver oils from this province will go to Britain, other than quantities needed for Canadian domestic use. This meant that the bulk of high-frequency liver oils from B.C. caught halibut, soupfin shark and black, red and ling cod would go to the United Kingdom.

He added that prices to be paid for the oils could not be revealed until signature of the agreement. The high potency fish liver oils are rich in vitamin "A" and are used among other things for medicinal purposes including the combating of "night blindness" in R.A.F. and R.C.A.F. war fliers.

BRITAIN REVEALS EXTENT OF MUTUAL AID TO UNITED STATES, RUSSIA AND OTHER ALLIES

LONDON.—Britain revealed the extent of her aid to the United States, Russia and other Allies and added that some of the material shared—experience in battle and research—can bear no monetary value.

To the United States, the government declared in a white paper, Britain has furnished more than £250,000,000 (about $1,112,500,000) worth of reverse lend-lease assistance. The scope of this is being broadened to include raw materials and bulk foodstuffs from both the United Kingdom and the colonies.

The greatest assistance, for which specific figures were given only to last June 30, has been in supplying base facilities, barracks, hospitals and so on for American air and land forces based in the British Isles.

At present "Britain's cash expenditures under mutual aid total well over £250,000,000 for United States forces and more than £375,000,000 (about $1,687,500,000) to Russia and other allies."

The report gave no details of reverse lend-lease supplied by Australia, New Zealand, South Africa and India, which have separate assistance agreements with the United States. Canada never has requested lend-lease aid.

The report was qualified by a statement that the figures were not complete and many of the goods and services furnished to American armed forces in various parts of the world cannot be measured in monetary terms, either because strict accounts have not been kept or because no accurate value can be placed upon them.

In this latter category, the white paper placed information and experience gained in battle and in research about performance of military equipment and the strong and weak points of both enemy and Allied tactics and weapons.

comparison between British mutual aid and American lend-lease, the white paper noted that President Roosevelt said in a report to congress last May 25 that 12 per cent. of the total United States war expenditure went for lend-lease.

"The proportion of British war expenditure currently devoted to mutual aid is 10 per cent," the paper continued.

Apart from mutual aid costs and lend-lease assistance, Britain has had to meet overseas expenditures totalling more than £2,250,000,000 (about $10,125,000,000) for which she has burdened her future commerce by parting with gold and other capital assets and by incurring liabilities to other members of the United Nations."

PROBABLE POST-WAR NEEDS MAY MEAN REDUCTION IN THE BIG SURPLUS OF CEREAL GRAINS

OTTAWA.—Requirements for meat, dairy and poultry products will continue to tax available supplies in 1944 while the large surplus of cereal grain begins to look "less formidable" in view of probable post-war needs and the present rate of disappearance, the agricultural department said.

"It was realized that over-all agricultural output from now on will tend to be limited by manpower, equipment and fertilizers as well as available cropland," the agriculture department said in a review.

Demand for wheat continued strong, with both Australia and the Argentine anticipating smaller crops this year. War development appeared to be opening up further areas to which wheat might be expected to move.

Although production objectives for beef and veal probably will not be attained in full, the deficiency so far as these two meats is concerned will not seriously affect the total meat supply, the review said.

Beginning with the last week of August, cattle marketings for six weeks showed an increase of 100 per cent. over the same period a year ago, which had been marked by a slump.

"As a result, beef supplies have continued adequate to meet requirements for civilian rationing and for special priority users, and in addition some beef has been stockpiled at the direction of the meat board for possible export.

"No large surplus has yet developed for this purpose, however."

Although the new British bacon agreement called for Canada to provide 900,000,000 pounds in two years, as against 675,000,000 pounds being shipped this year, the review said no surplus of hogs is likely to develop.

Any additional quantities made available for export probably would be quickly sold.

BUILDING SUBSIDY

To Protect Farmers Against Higher Lumber Prices

OTTAWA.—Farmers who find new buildings essential for storing grain or housing livestock have been protected against higher lumber prices, effective in August, through payment of a 10 per cent. consumer subsidy by the prices stability corporation, a branch of the prices board, officials said.

The prices board ruling says: "Any civilian purchasing lumber for use in assisting the primary production of essential foods is eligible for a consumer subsidy."

The subsidy is also payable to fishermen, co-operatives, unincorporated associations and incorporated farms.
